

SHENKER RUSSO & CLARK LLP

Lily Summerfield

lily.summerfield@srclawoffices.com

Lily assists the firm in many aspects of the practice with research, analysis, and government affairs.

Prior to joining the firm full time, Lily worked as an intern at Shenker, Russo and Clark while obtaining her Bachelor's degree in American Political Science and European History. She concentrated in Law and Society, and while in school she was on the board for several political and law groups before continuing on with a Masters in Public Administration. In her studies she focused on researching the role of money in politics, lobbying, and labor relations.

In her time at the firm, Lily has worked on research for several different projects, including healthcare, labor unions, cannabis management, and liquor licensing. She has also conducted several long-term investigative projects for the firm, and assists in meetings through note taking and coordination.

Lily has also worked as a medical receptionist and a group fitness trainer, allowing her to develop strong communication and relational skills. In her free time, she enjoys reading, weight training, and following local politics.

Education

- Clark University, BA in Political Science and History, summa cum laude
- Clark University, Masters in Public Administration, in progress

